It's important that donations are made to a variety of these campaigns because while all are in the general area of the campsite and do communicate, the different campaigns don't always or can't always share different resources. Grab a group of friends, make strips of paper, and shuffle to make donations.

It has come to my attention that this regained popularity in recent weeks. As the author, I'm deeply humbled by the support in the form of reblogs and likes even despite the crass language. I'm not Lakota or from the areas of these tribes. I'm from a Pueblo in New Mexico (shout-out to the Pueblo camp at standing Rock!) And Navajo Nation. I made this post at s tumultuous time in my life when I had accrued so much capital and privilege in the white man's world. Back when these were working links, I was a community organizer that went into a post traumatic stress disorder episode while this post was getting popular 2 years ago when Standing Rock was still at camp. I ask folks to reblog this out of respect to the many people and messages passed that allows for campaigns like these to exist. I'll never know how much was raised but know that y'all were a part of something huge and important. That two years is not a long time and progress is like watching grass grow.

It's time to kill the idea that we can only grow and heal when we're uncomfortable. You heal every time you have a good conversation with someone. You heal every time you laugh. You heal every time something makes you smile genuinely. You heal every time you have fun creating something - anything. You heal every time you get so absorbed in something fun that you forget your struggles for a while. There is, in fact, lots of healing and growth to be found INSIDE your comfort zone.

Just thinking about how even after having usurped his authority, Loki gives Heimdall the opportunity to walk away peacefully by merely exiling him, Heimdall rejects it in the most dramatic way possible by trying to take off Loki's head, and Loki still allows him to go on living.

Thinking about how Sif and the Warriors 3 talk down to Loki even as he's standing over them as king; go on to betray him in so dramatic a fashion that he winds up attempting suicide and falling into the hands of a genocidal cult; repeatedly threaten to kill him with no provocation while he's in freaking handcuffs, and he still saves them from facing any serious consequences for their treason.

Thinking about how Thor has spent centuries belittling and intimidating Loki and has made it very clear that he has no love left for him and doesn't even consider him his brother anymore; has never once tried to understand Loki's POV or how things got so messed up between them; tells him repeatedly that he doesn't trust him and twice uses Frigga's memory to manipulate or cause him pain, and Loki still risks both his life and his potential freedom to save not only Thor himself but also the mortal girlfriend he's just finished telling Thor isn't worth getting attached to.

Thinking about how Odin stripped Loki of his identity and his culture for personal/political gain; lied to him about it his entire life; raised him to despise his own race; withheld his approval at every turn, even as Loki was dangling over an abyss with tears streaming down his face; literally told him to be grateful he hadn't slaughtered him as an infant, before hypocritically sentencing him to eternity in the dungeons and making a point to rub it in his face that he'll never see the one person he ever felt loved by again; sent an impersonal guard to inform him that she was gone forever; I'M SURE THERE ARE SEVERAL OTHER OFFENSIVES I'M MISSING HERE, BUT THERE ARE SO MANY MY BRAIN CAN'T EVEN KEEP TRACK OF THEM ALL. And still, the worst Loki does is wipe his memories and leave

His behaviour (and that of his friends, which he appears to condone) is filled with microaggressions, which can be just as damaging. Like Frigga, Thor may care about Loki… to an extent and when it suits him. But he has little regard for Loki as an individual. Both characters love the idea of Loki far more than they love Loki himself. Or, as @alstee once put it: Thor loves Loki, but it's a child's understanding of love.

I'd personally argue that it's not The Dark World that drops Thor's "who controls the would-be king?" inquiry. It's Avengers. He asks this one time, and one time only, and he never once brings it up amongst international people start calling our country aotearoa instead of new zealand challenge

aotearoa is the te reo name for our country, commonly translated as "land of the long white cloud" as the story goes Kupe was guided to our whenua by following a long white cloud in the sky. new zealand is a name which was forced on us by colonizers who stole our precious land less than 200 years ago. by reverting back to the māori name you are metaphorically giving the land back to the tangata whenua, the people of the land, and we can begin to normalize using the proper names for things that should have always belonged to māori

> We would like to say formally, to prevent any further little misunderstandings, that while the League of Temperance fully respects the work of The Really Human Front, there is no link between the two organizations. The Front, we believe, is somewhat obsessive about the whole business of ‘passing for human,’ and encourages its members to become so dowdy and dull in pursuit of an imagined ‘human-ness’ that they are in danger of standing out from the crowd in the opposite direction, as it were.
> In fact humans, once you get to meet them without a pitchfork in their hands, are remarkably focused and flexible creatures. It is amazing what they will tolerate provided it is not done to them personally. You will be pleasantly surprised. These are city people. Out in the rural areas, somebody sees everything. In the city, however, provided you do not make too much noise or are excessively cruel to animals, and nod cheerfully to your neighbors should you encounter them, then no one will bother you until blood actually seeps through the partition wall. And even then, they may well preface their opening remarks with ‘Excuse me…’ In short, humans in the city prevent themselves from going totally insane by ignoring all but a tiny amount of what is happening around them. provided that you follow our sensible advice and try to fit in, they simply will not notice you.

You recognise why are you feeling bad. Take a deep breath, count to ten and make a mental check list similar to this one:

- Does my head hurts? Do I need to drink some water?
- When I last ate? Am I hungry?
- What hour it is? Should I rest?
- Isn't it especially hot today? Am I feeling gross? Should I take a shower?
- How long am I working on this? Should I take a break or do something else?

Hello Jewish lotr fans!

I've been coming up with ideas for a Sefardi Jewish Gondor au! I'm ashkie so especially if you're sefardi please comment your ideas :D

- Minas Tirith is the בית המקדש. I haven't thought about how religion more things to think about:

- Jews use the lunar calendar, how does that translate over to the calendars in Middle Earth
- The significance of Sauron's cult in Numenor when people were actually worshipping God in a much more integrated way than they were in canon
- What.. is god here.. where did religion come from.. do they have a Torah..
- Polytheistic Judaism?? The Valar could be angels instead of Gods but Eru is too distant to work for this. The Valar are really the only ones who could give this kind of religion.
- Jewish queerphobia is very different than Christian queerphobia, here is a post about Gondorian queerphobia that really reflects Jewish homophobia to me, but I'll make my own one as well.
- Food customs? Kosher?
- Which texts exist here? Do we have the same Torah? Is there gemarah?
- Hobbits in Eriador picked up customs from being near Arnor, but hobbits up near the gladden fields may have been more influenced by customs of Mirkwood and Lorien. We could translate that into the differences between Ashkenazi and Sefardi. (Although it would be a bit backwards since historically Ashkenazim were more sheltered while Sefardim lived among goyim..)
- Maybe religion was first given to the elves (Vanyar) and then passed through many versions. So.. different groups of elves, and which races mingled with elves, can correspond to the different kinds of Judaism. That's more thorough than the above idea.

he's reclusive, has extremely specific tastes in kink, and commissions so much art (and not just still pieces, we're talking like several minute long animated porn shorts)

we're talking like "this guy could buy several houses with the amount of money he spends on commissioned furry porn of his very specific kink" theres one other thing we know about him- the reason he can afford all this? is because he's apparently one of the top heart surgeons in the country

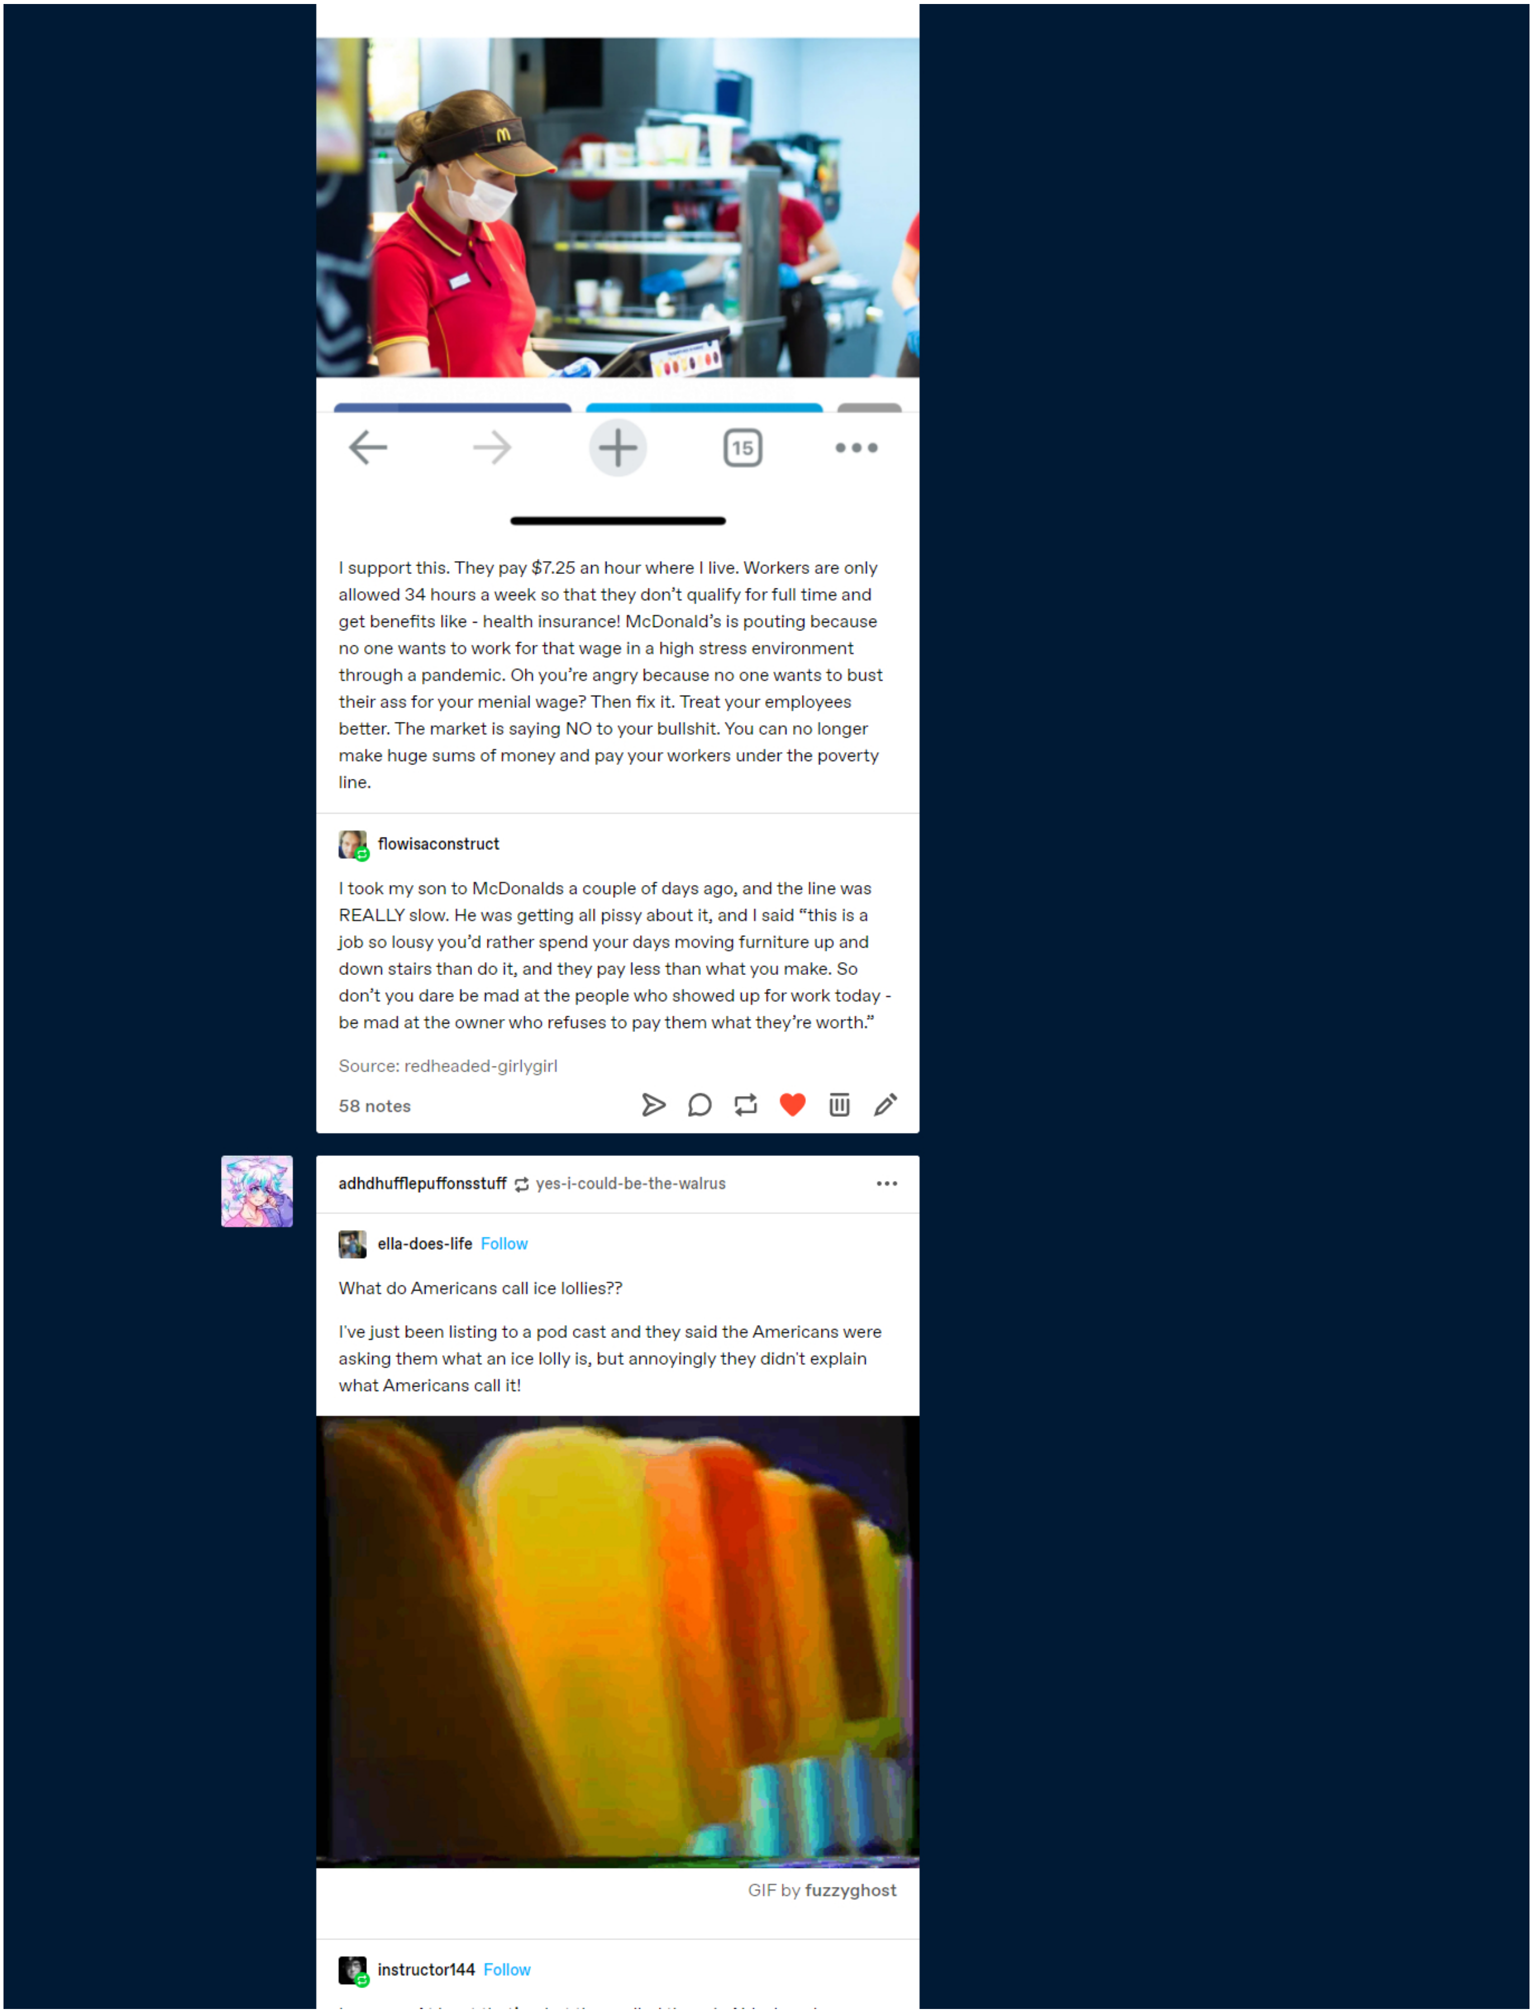
RESTAURANTS

McDonald's Workers Will Be Walking Off the Job In 15 Major Cities Next Week

Employees of the fast-food giant are still fighting for a $15 minimum wage.

BY MURA DOMINKO

MAY 10, 2021



I support this. They pay $7.25 an hour where I live. Workers are only allowed 34 hours a week so that they don't qualify for full time and get benefits like - health insurance! McDonald's is pouting because no one wants to work for that wage in a high stress environment through a pandemic. Oh you're angry because no one wants to bust their ass for your menial wage? Then fix it. Treat your employees better. The market is saying NO to your bullshit. You can no longer make huge sums of money and pay your workers under the poverty line.

I took my son to McDonalds a couple of days ago, and the line was REALLY slow. He was getting all pissy about it, and I said "this is a job so lousy you'd rather spend your days moving furniture up and down stairs than do it, and they pay less than what you make. So don't you dare be mad at the people who showed up for work today - be mad at the owner who refuses to pay them what they're worth."

Almost everyone I know would call this a popsicle. BUT…that is because Popsicle is a trademarked brand name that's become what Americans Call It. We Americans do that often, but I don't think it's a solely American phenomenon. When a brand of something becomes so ubiquitous that people start using it to describe ANY form of the thing…that's what Americans do.

If I see one more stupid ass article or post from a restaurant complaining about not being able to hire staff I'm gonna go the fuck off and pay for fb advertising and make a fucking flyer that makes it more than clear why you are having these issues since y'all apparently think complaining about it and blaming people for not wanting to work in the shittiest industry (overall, I know there's good jobs in the service industry they are just very few) is going to help.

Listen, you pay like shit. You treat your staff like shit. Your customers treat your staff like shit. No one has to work for you. Idgaf if they are on unemployment. Good for them for being able to avoid working for poverty wages for you to bitch they didn't roll enough silverware after working 8 hours for $4.50 an hour or whatever plus $40 worth of tips. No one wants to do that shit any more. Pay better and treat your staff better, like give them breaks and free food? My job has given me over $10,000 worth of electronics since starting 2 years ago. Fucking Chili's will fire you for eating a french fry 7 hours into your shift while you're starving. Fuck off with this shit. I really can't stand this entitled ass older generation who expects us to keep working ourselves to death all while staying perpetually miserable. Seriously, fuck off.

Chik-fil-le sandwich

INGREDIENTS:

4 hamburger buns, split

1 head green leaf lettuce, leaves separated

1 beefsteak tomato, sliced

20 dill pickle slices

FOR THE CHICKEN

2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts

1 cup dill pickle juice

1 ½ cups milk, divided

1 cup peanut oil

1 large egg

½ cup all-purpose flour

1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar

Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

DIRECTIONS:

Place a chicken breast on a cutting board. With your hand flat on top of it, carefully slice the chicken in half horizontally. Trim excess fat as needed.

In a large shallow baking dish, combine chicken, pickle juice and ½ cup milk; marinate for at least 30 minutes. Drain well.

Heat peanut oil in a large skillet over medium high heat.

In another large shallow baking dish, whisk together remaining 1 cup milk and egg. Stir in chicken to coat and drain excess milk mixture.

In a gallon size Ziploc bag or large bowl, combine chicken, flour and confectioners' sugar; season with salt and pepper, to taste.

Working in batches, add chicken to the skillet and cook until evenly golden and crispy, about 4-5 minutes. Transfer to a paper towel-lined plate.

Serve chicken immediately on burger buns with green leaf lettuce, tomato and pickles.

How to self-edit your book

by Writerthreads on Instagram

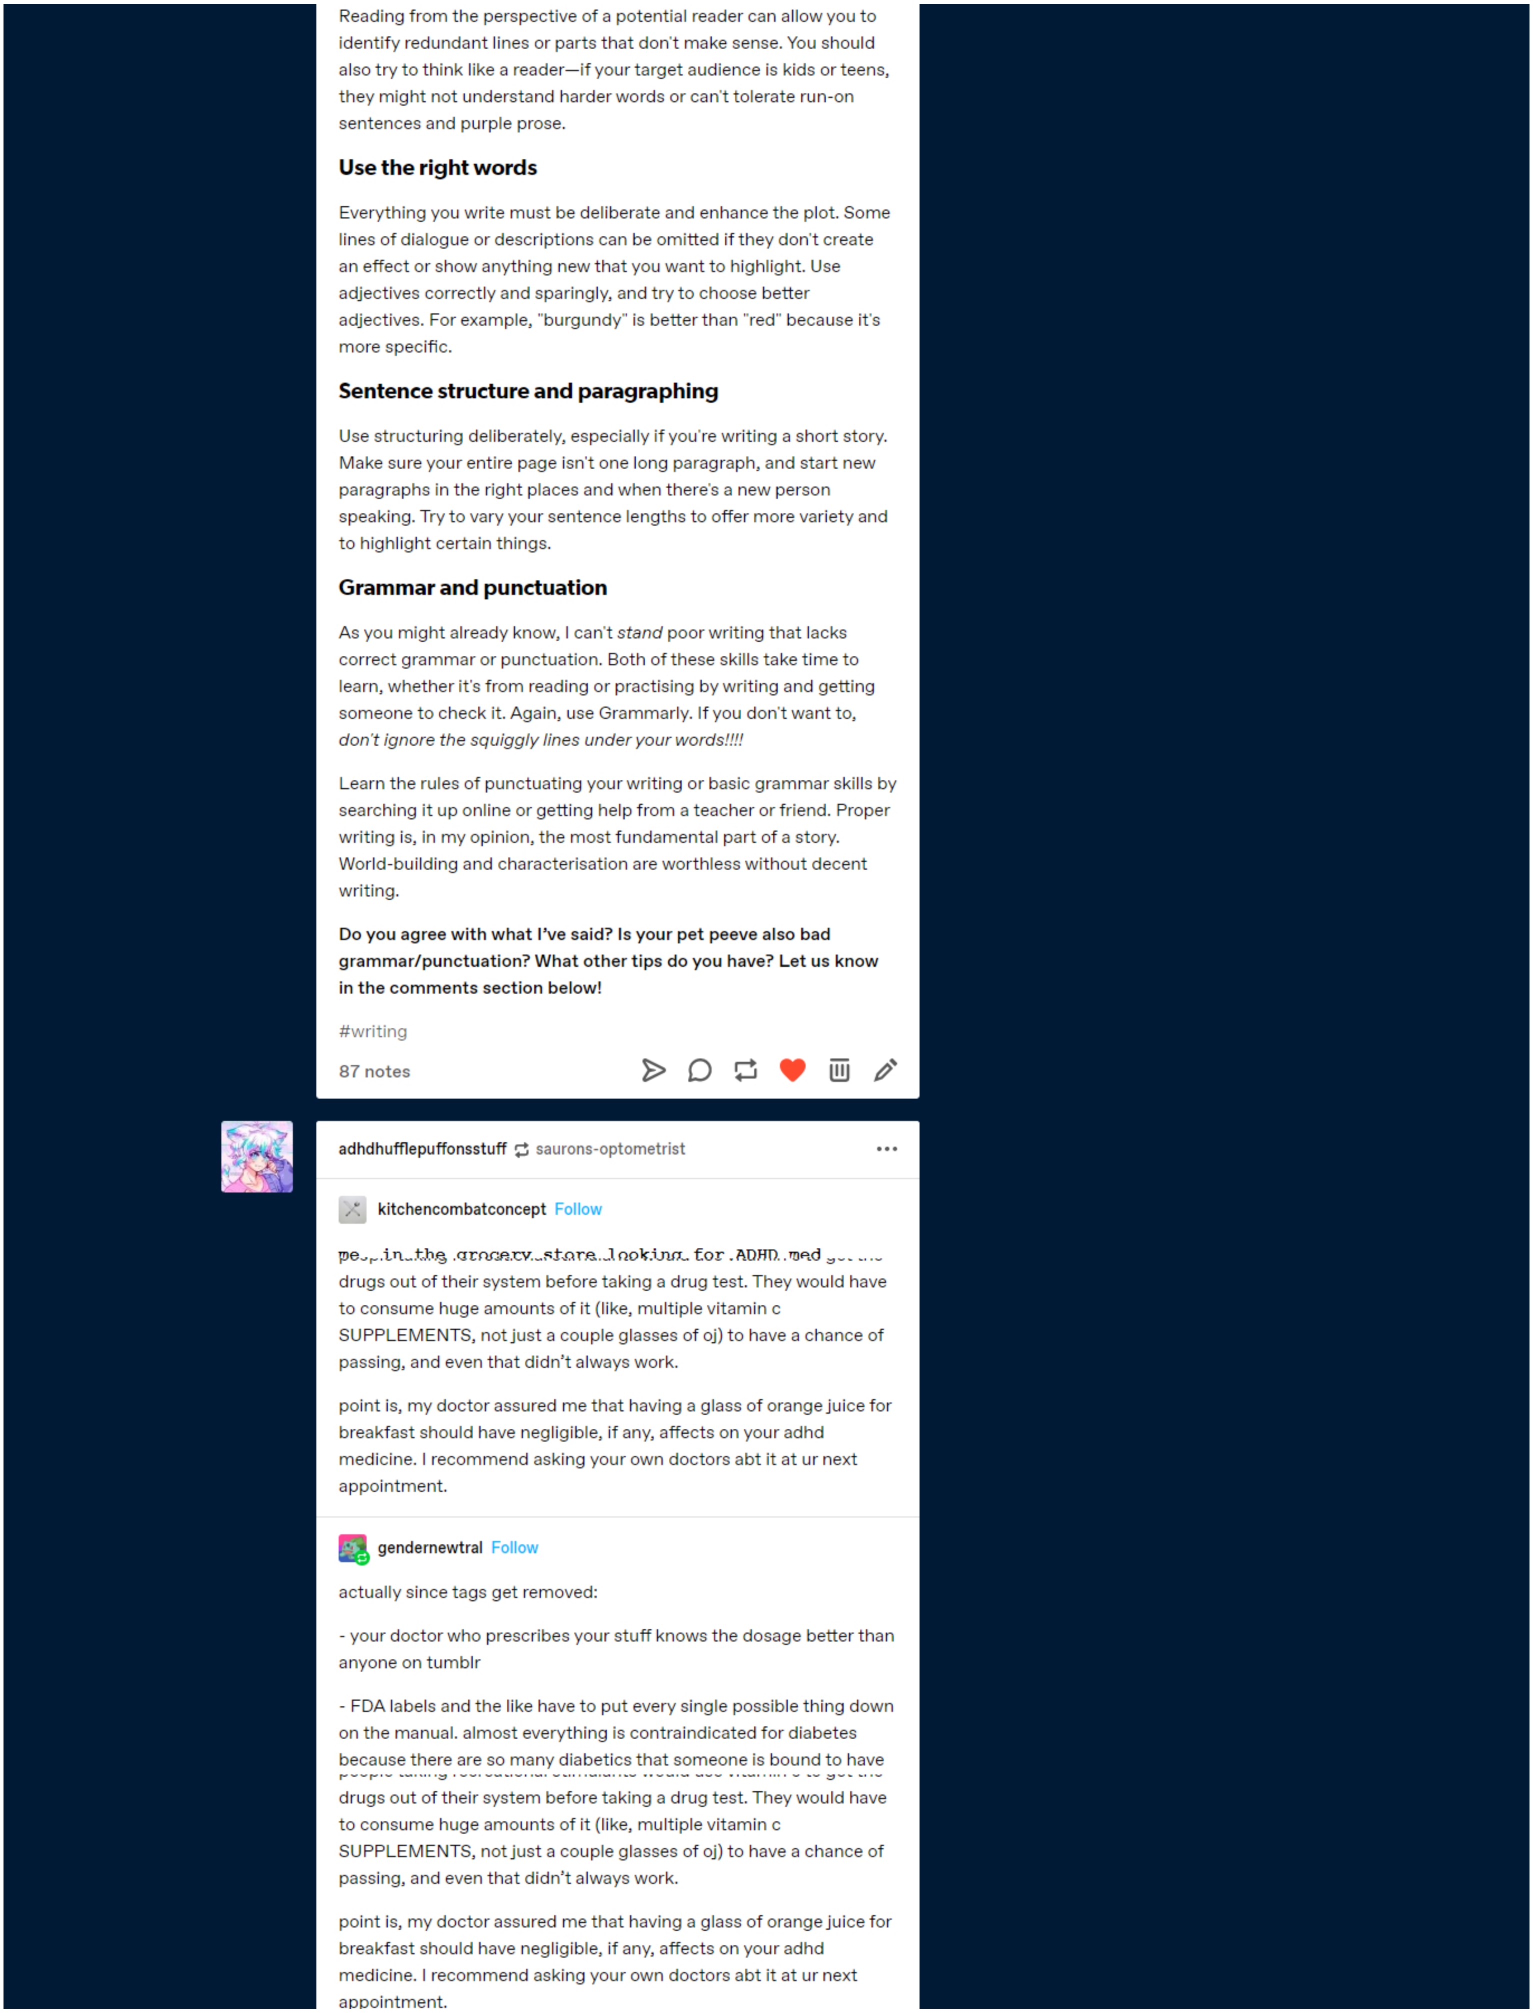
After editing and giving feedback on a few pieces of writing over the last few days, I've identified some of the biggest problems people had in their writing and how you can possibly resolve them on your own. This is especially important if you're going to publish or submit your work somewhere, and works for both academic and recreational writing.

Read through what you write

Grammar mistakes can be resolved by reading through what you've written carefully, and by saying the words out loud, especially lines of dialogue, you can identify where you need additional punctuation marks or where they aren't needed.

This can be done by Grammarly if you're lazy, but I suggest only using it if your grammar skills are decent enough because it can offer wrong advice sometimes as it can't identify syntax that well.

Read from the perspective of a reader



Reading from the perspective of a potential reader can allow you to identify redundant lines or parts that don't make sense. You should also try to think like a reader—if your target audience is kids or teens, they might not understand harder words or can't tolerate run-on sentences and purple prose.

Use the right words

Everything you write must be deliberate and enhance the plot. Some lines of dialogue or descriptions can be omitted if they don't create an effect or show anything new that you want to highlight. Use adjectives correctly and sparingly, and try to choose better adjectives. For example, "burgundy" is better than "red" because it's more specific.

Sentence structure and paragraphing

Use structuring deliberately, especially if you're writing a short story. Make sure your entire page isn't one long paragraph, and start new paragraphs in the right places and when there's a new person speaking. Try to vary your sentence lengths to offer more variety and to highlight certain things.

Grammar and punctuation

As you might already know, I can't stand poor writing that lacks correct grammar or punctuation. Both of these skills take time to learn, whether it's from reading or practising by writing and getting someone to check it. Again, use Grammarly. If you don't want to, don't ignore the squiggly lines under your words!!!!

Learn the rules of punctuating your writing or basic grammar skills by searching it up online or getting help from a teacher or friend. Proper writing is, in my opinion, the most fundamental part of a story. World-building and characterisation are worthless without decent writing.

Do you agree with what I've said? Is your pet peeve also bad grammar/punctuation? What other tips do you have? Let us know in the comments section below!

- FDA labels and the like have to put every single possible thing down on the manual. almost everything is contraindicated for diabetes because there are so many diabetics that someone is bound to have a diabetes-related reaction to something. it doesn't mean it's guaranteed or common

- most articles i looked into agreed that you have to take like a TON of supplemental vitamin c. not just the amount that would begin to replenish your usual levels, but an excessive amount

- consuming a small amount of vitamin c along with your medication will not impact it anymore than the usual levels of the vitamin in your body that it would have encountered anyways

- if you find a difference when taking a stimulant with and without vitamin c, talk to you doctor about determining causality and then what to do about it

- the chemicals in grapefruit that cause such significant medication interactions are furanocoumarin chemicals. they aren't highly prevalent in other citrus

One of their members Sheila was acting out a dialogue about how human and animal waste can be turned into fuel when the actor popped up in the online meeting.

Sophia added: 'I couldn't believe it. Nobody said anything to him because everyone was trying to act cool and also didn't want to interrupt Sheila who was now in full flow, talking about shing."

Manul/Pallas cat (Otocolobus manul), I didn't initially include these guys because they're so distinctive, but it's come to my attention that someone has indeed mistaken one for a housecat and raised it as one:

Jungle cat (Felis chaus), the largest member of the genus Felis, and a fair size larger than a housecat, which is why I hadn't included it. But if someone didn't know what it was they'd probably think it was just a large breed of housecat:

you know what? shaming straight women for liking men isn't cute either. i genuinely hope that every straight girl has a fulfilling and happy relationship. when you put the blame on women for even dating "grrr evil men" in the first place you ignore the amount of abuse that women face in relationships and you excuse the men who are misogynistic and pieces of shit by emphasizing the idea that it's normal for men to treat women like garbage.
